Subject: ESA Strategic Reform Agenda

Dear Colleagues,

Yesterday, 25 March 2015, we held the second workshop for the advisory committees that were established to consider options for the 'to-be' phase of the Review of ESA Enabling Support Services.

It was another highly productive session at the Training Centre in Hume involving people from right across the ESA workforce. The outcomes of this second workshop will help to inform the reforms to our enabling services, which will in turn provide even better service to our frontline staff and volunteers.

I hope to meet with unions and volunteer organisations in the near future to consult further on the outcomes of the two workshops.

Yesterday's workshop was also an opportunity for me to present on the Strategic Reform Agenda that the ESA will be embarking on in the coming months. The strategic reform agenda comes at this important point in time as the Expenditure Review draws to a close, the ACTAS Blueprint for Change has been released and we continue to deliver on important Government priorities such as the Strategic Bushfire Management Plan, the Women in Emergency Services Strategy and the Station Upgrade and Relocation Program.

A recording of the opening address has now been posted on the ESA Intranet (SharePoint) Home Page.

I encourage you to take the time during your work day/shift to watch it so you are up to date with progress on the Review and the announcement of the Strategic Reform Agenda.

Regards
